Daniel Busse is a Frankfurt-based Partner and heads Allen & Overy's dispute resolution practice in Germany. Mr Busse and his team exclusively deal with arbitration (mostly commercial, but increasingly investment arbitration) and have experience conducting cases under various sets of rules and subject to many different systems of law. He predominately represents clients in corporate, energy, projects, finance, reinsurance and general commercial matters. Daniel has also served as an arbitrator in more than 50 cases, including 10 as chairman of the tribunal or sole arbitrator.

Mr Busse is recommended as a leading expert on international arbitration in all the major guides and directories, including Chambers, Legal 500, JUVE, Best Lawyers and Global Arbitration Review's "The International Who's Who of Commercial Arbitration". Who's Who Legal 2015 describes him as "extremely strong" and praises his "incredibly effective representation of clients in arbitrations". Under his leadership, Allen & Overy's German dispute resolution practice was recognised by JUVE as the 2013 "Dispute Resolution Firm of the Year". Mr Busse regularly speaks at arbitration conferences and publishes articles on arbitration issues.

For about ten years, Mr Busse served as a lecturer and honorary professor in arbitration law at the University of Gießen. He is the founder of the Hamburg group of DIS 40 and a co-founder of the Hamburg Arbitration Circle. Mr Busse also serves on boards and task forces of international arbitration groups and institutions, such as ICC, IBA, KLRCA, ARIAS Europe. He is also a member of the German sports arbitration panel (Deutsches Sportschiedsgericht).
